DEPARTMENT OF POLICE
CITY OF LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA
R. E. STECKEL CHIEF

July 1, 1930.

Honorable Board of Police Commissioners,
City of Los Angeles,
Los Angeles, California.

Gentlemen:

I respectfully submit herewith the annual report of the Los Angeles Police Department for the fiscal year ending June 30th, 1930.

The compilation of facts as set forth by our Statistical Bureau I feel are well worth perusing and will reveal some interesting results accomplished by this Department relative to the general crime situation in the city.

IMPROVEMENTS:

Under the heading of improvements the completion of two sub-stations is of importance: The Hollywood Station, located at the corner of Wilcox and De Longpre, and the Venice Station at 701 Venice Blvd., both of which fill a very urgent need from which the department suffered great inconvenience over quite a period of time. Not only are these sub-stations a credit to the communities in which they are located, but are an improvement to the city through their architectural structure and design.

In moving the Administrative Offices, together with the Accountant's Office, Transportation Office and the office of the Printer to the ground floor of the City Hall, the department profited not only in a financial way through the yearly saving in rental, but because the offices themselves are more suitable to the official standing of the Chief of Police and his staff and a credit to the city as well. This department suffered greatly from lack of official dignity in the eyes of many reputable citizens and city officials who found it necessary to visit the Administrative Offices of the Police Department when located at 314 West First Street.

Another worthy matter which brought credit to the department is the recent change in uniform. This not only adds to the personal appearance of the officer, but gives dignity to the department as well, and we have received many favorable comments from citizens regarding this change.

CRIME SITUATION

The crime situation of the last twelve months is by no means alarming. Taking into consideration the large area of the city, which covers some 441.69 square miles, and the growing population estimated at 1,231,730 by the 1930 U. S. Census, which means a yearly increase of approximately 75,000, and comparing this with the lack of increase in personnel in the last six years, the efficiency of this department in crime prevention and apprehension of criminals is placed second to none in the United States.

With reference to vice conditions in this city, it is extremely gratifying to note that the city was never freer than it is at this time from vice, particularly gambling, prostitution and violations of the Volstead and Wright Act Laws. Further note must be taken of the fact that when over 85 per cent of the cases show convictions obtained in our Courts it is a record not equaled by any Police Department in the country.

While statistics may tend to show that a small increase over that of last year is present in such crimes as burglary, robbery and auto theft, the percentage is so small when we take into consideration the increase in population and compare it with the lack of increase in personnel, we see no need for alarm, as we realize that the increase is largely due to a change in the procedure of keeping more accurate records of such crimes.

URGENT NEEDS

May we call your attention to an article submitted in this report which deals with the educational activities in the department. The results of the special classes held during the past six months are very gratifying. However, I personally feel that the re-establishment of the Police Training

School is one of the most vital and fundamental needs of this organization. It is only through police education extended members of this department (and particularly the new recruit) that we can ever hope to do away with the costly mistakes that have brought criticism upon the department. The small amount of dollars and cents necessary to maintain a school of this kind does not compare with the degree of efficiency attained nor the great amount of time saved in bringing the officer to a higher standard of reliability. Because of this there should be no argument against the re-organization of the Police Training School.

Also, under the title of Urgent Needs, I feel obliged to again refer to the contemplated new Police Administrative Building, which should be located within or near the grounds of the present Civic Center. In moving the Administrative Offices to the City Hall we have in no way remedied the dangerous condition of the City Jail building, which the yearly grand jury sees fit to condemn. Neither have we relieved the fire hazard under which our Record Bureau exists, and which contains one of the greatest insurance policies ever written between the citizens of our community and the criminal element. Should this building take fire, it would not only mean a catastrophe for Los Angeles in the loss of life which would result, but also the demolition of our Police Records.

The Detective Bureau is working under a handicap that impairs the efficiency of the department which could be raised under more favorable surroundings. The same is true of the Traffic and Central Patrol Divisions, whose quarters at present are costing the city a large sum for rental that should be saved.

The day is now past when the radio is recognized as still in its infancy so far as police work is concerned. Marvelous results have been obtained in various cities in the United States as well as in foreign countries where radio broadcasting stations have been installed in headquarters and scout cars equipped with radio sets adaptable to a low wave length broadcasting.

If it is possible through your immediate attention for a sum of $15,000 to be appropriated for the purchase of a radio station and equipment of some thirty Police cars, I feel that the results would more than double the effort should the same amount be invested in added personnel.

GRATIFYING RESULTS

It is indeed gratifying to note that through the efforts of the City Council and your honorable body plans and specifications have been submitted and favorably acted upon for the improvement of the Lincoln Heights Jail site by the erection of a $300,000.00 building, which will considerably relieve the jail situation. However, our enthusiasm and earnest desire to take up the rehabilitation of prisoners through the means of a "prison farm" must not be lost, and I feel positive that should such a measure be brought to the attention of the citizens of Los Angeles it would receive a majority vote at the polls.

Some of the success the department has enjoyed during the past twelve months may be accredited to the reorganization plan, which, after a scientific crime analysis, resulted in a re-distribution of members throughout the various divisions. Furthermore, the more closely we adhere to the complete reorganization plan as submitted, the more effective the results.

Personal Property Recovered.....	$3,166,814.16
Derived from Confiscated Autos.....	4,726.54
Valuation of Unclaimed Property.....	6,762.57
Stolen Autos Recovered, estimated by owners at $500 each.....	4,237,000.00
Street Traffic Fines.....	410,406.55
Motor Vehicle Law Fines.....	219,739.50
General Fines.....	483,378.12

From a financial viewpoint, and considering the fact that the citizens of Los Angeles have enjoyed less crime per 100,000 persons than any other city in the United States, the expenditure for maintenance more than justifies itself.

In conclusion, please accept my sincere thanks for the co-operation rendered by your honorable body, and may I respectfully urge that you introduce such action as is deemed necessary in obtaining an appropriation of $15,000 for the installation and maintenance of a radio broadcasting station; a new Police Administrative Building, and an increase in personnel, all of which will materially assist in raising the efficiency of the Police Department.

Respectfully,

R.Z. Steckel

Chief of Police of Los Angeles.

Executive Office
Los Angeles Police Department
Board of Police Commissioners

July 1, 1930.

Honorable John C. Porter,
Mayor.

Dear Sir:

The Board of Police Commissioners herewith submits its report covering the fiscal year ending June 30, 1930:

For the good of the service a change was made in the position of General Manager of the Police Department (commonly known as Chief of Police) on December 30 of last year, and Deputy Chief R. E. Steckel has been promoted to the position of Chief through a temporary appointment.

The Board also has made two changes in the personnel immediately under the supervision of the Commission, one being its Secretary and the other the Chief Investigator.

The executive offices of the Department, including the staff of the Chief, the Assistant Chief and a Deputy Chief, have been removed from the quarters so long occupied on First street to the ground floor of the City Hall, with entrance from Temple street. This removal, which also included the personnel of the Chief Accountant, Transportation Division and the Printing Bureau, was made possible by the expiration of the leases on the buildings located on First street. The new quarters are now on the same floor with the Crime Prevention Bureau and the City Mother's Bureau. As additional leases expire in buildings on First street now occupied by portions of the Police Department, the personnel of those divisions also will be removed to the ground floor of the City Hall, if at that time sufficient space is available.

This arrangement will prove quite satisfactory from the standpoint of public convenience, and also for the efficient operation of the executive offices of the Department, until such time as the citizens of Los Angeles awaken to the realization that it is necessary to provide funds with which to erect a permanent Administration Building and Central Station for their Police Department in keeping with the needs of this great metropolis. The fact is obvious that such a structure should be located within the immediate vicinity of the Civic Center.

Due to initial steps taken by the Board of Health and complete co-operation on the part of the City Council, actual work on the construction of a jail to occupy the present site of the Lincoln Heights Division soon will be under way, and it is probable that in the near future this building, which is to take the place of the insanitary and inadequate structure on First street, will be a reality. The structure now used as headquarters for the Central Division cannot be too severely condemned. For years it has been a disgrace to the City.

An aeronautical division of the Police Department now is in process of formation. The personnel includes world-famed airmen.

Among the accomplishments of less importance during the first year of this Commission may be noted the change in uniforms of members of the Department.

This Commission has found that it would be impossible to give proper attention to the various matters which come before it were it to continue the practice heretofore prevailing of constituting itself a trial board before which members of the Department could appear and appeal from any action of the Chief wherein a penalty has been imposed upon a member for dereliction of duty or violation of any rule of the Department. In order to conserve its time and also better to enable it to arrive at the facts in any appeal which might be presented to it, the Commission adopted a rule requiring all appellants to submit their appeals in printed or written form, together with affidavits verifying the truthfulness of the statements therein. By constituting itself a Board of Review instead of a Trial Board, the Commission believes it has placed itself in a position whereby its decisions will be more satisfactory to all concerned.

In conclusion, the Board of Police Commissioners will say that at all times it has endeavored to keep in mind that it is the duty of this Board, first, to observe the law, and second, to enforce the law. It firmly believes that it has no right to say which law shall be enforced and which law shall be disregarded. This Commission regards itself solely as a law-enforcement and administrative agency, and at all times it has endeavored to so conduct itself, and in so doing it has tried to impress upon each member of the Police Department that he or she likewise must observe the law and must enforce it, ever keeping in mind that no person is so powerful as to be above the observance of the law and no person is so weak as to be beneath its protection.

Thanking you for your hearty co-operation throughout the year, and expressing our appreciation of the honor you bestowed upon us in deeming us worthy of membership in your official family and thus accorded the privilege of rendering service to our beloved City, even though such services be limited, we are,

Sincerely yours,

BOARD OF POLICE COMMISSIONERS of the
CITY OF LOS ANGELES.

THE ORGANIZATION OF THE LOS ANGELES POLICE DEPARTMENT

Until quite recently, 1923 to be exact, a history of the organization of the Los Angeles Police Department was a history of the expansion of a town marshal's office to perform the multitudinous duties required of a metropolitan police department.

The earliest record we have of the present department concerns the appointment of Chief Henry King in 1879. Chief King had serving under him in the village of Los Angeles about 50 men.

The volume of crime and the size of the city did not justify anything further than the detailing of policemen from uniform to plain clothes duty for investigations, until in 1890 when the Detective Bureau was created with four men assigned to criminal investigation.

From that time until 1923 additional units to fill growing needs were attached to either the Central Division or the Detective Division. As a function performed by the Department assumed sufficient importance, it was assigned regularly to one man, who, as time went on, became a Bureau nominally subordinate to one of the two important commanders. When August Vollmer took over control of the Department in that year, he was confronted with a peculiar situation in which the Police Department consisted of a Detective Bureau, Central Division, and seven "outside" stations which had scarcely more than the status of convenience points for the dispatching of men and very little standing as independent units.

The ultimate effect of such building without organization was that the Chief of Police could be little more than a figurehead, the real power of the Department lying in the Captain of Detectives, as he was then called, and the Captain of Central Police Division, although the responsibility still lay upon the Chief. It is interesting as a side light to note that the annual reports of that period show the Chief of Police and the Administrative Offices under the personnel of Central Division.

After a survey of the situation, the first move was to consolidate those units of both the Detective Bureau and Central Patrol Division that had to do with records, into one Records Division. The next series of moves consisted in dispossessing the Captain of Central Division of the responsibility of the Vice Squad, which became the Vice Division, the Desk Sergeant and the Property Clerk's Office, which became the Property Division, and the Chief Driver's Bureau, charged with the maintenance and care of motor equipment, which became the Transportation Division. The Police Court Probation Officers and the Juvenile Bureau were merged into a Crime Prevention Division, which included also the formerly independent City Mother's Office. The Central and Lincoln Heights Jails, which had been adjuncts to those respective patrol divisions, were consolidated under the authority of the Chief Jailer. His authority extended also to all other jail facilities in the Divisions.

The aim of this form of organization was to centralize all performance of each specialized function under a functional supervisor who would be responsible for the performance of the Bureau immediately assigned to him, and with the intent that he should also be responsible and in authority to a limited extent over the performance of his particular function in all Patrol Divisions.

Thus, after almost fifty years of unguided development, we find in a little less than one year the foundation laid for a functionalized Department in which the type of service given in the various geographical areas would be as nearly uniform as it is possible to obtain. The Division Commander could then be held responsible for the quality of service rendered under standardized conditions.

With respect to the present organization of the Department, we may begin from the source of all municipal authority. At the head is found the Electorate, or the Voters of the city. These voters not only elect all of the officers charged with the administration of the city government and the appointment of other officers, but may directly, by recall, remove any officer of the city whether elected or appointed. Naturally, next in line, appears the Mayor, who is the Chief Executive of the City. He, with the consent of the Council, appoints the members of the Board of Police Commissioners, who are held responsible to him for the operation of the Police Department. The approval of the Mayor is necessary to all acts of the Council, except those passed over his veto. He, therefore, has quite direct control over the expenditures of the Police Department, and indirect control over its policies and activities.

The relation of the City Council to the Police Commission is not so direct, though quite important. The consent of the Council is necessary for the appointment and removal of the members of the Board of Police Commissioners. The approval of the Council must be obtained to all expenditures of City Funds by the Police Department. This may be by passage of the Salary Ordinance, the approval of the Police Budget for the year, and the approval of special appropriations and transfers of funds. The Bureau of Budget and Efficiency is related to the Police Department in its duty of investigating all requests for the use of city money and making its recommendations to the Mayor.

The executive body of the Police Department is the Police Commission, consisting of five members appointed for five-year terms, so arranged that one term expires each year, thus tending to insure a continuity of policy. These members may be removed by the Mayor with the consent of the Council.

The authority of the Police Commission over the Chief of Police is complete. Ordinarily, it is expected that the Commission will formulate policies for the conduct of police activities. It is only in exceptional cases in which information has come to the Board which happens to not be available to the Chief of Police, that the Commission will undertake to make special rulings covering individual cases. The Board is the last Court of Review for persons disciplined by the Chief of Police for the infraction of Departmental regulations. Provided, that the procedure laid down in the Charter for the dismissal and hearing of such persons has been followed, there is no appeal from the decision of the Board.

In addition, the Board supervises the issuance of permits for certain types of business requiring close supervision. The advisability of issuing a permit to any particular applicant is investigated by a group drawn from the Police Department, but responsible directly to the Police Commission. The Board is also the Traffic Commission for the city and investigates and advises on all requests for traffic markings, traffic signals and the various specified parking and no-parking zones. The Commission has power to pass what amounts to temporary ordinances on traffic matters. Such resolutions are in effect for only 30 days, at the end of which time they either expire or are superseded by the coming into effect of an ordinance on the same matter.

In view of the fact that the enforcement of the License Ordinance, while delegated to the Police Department by Ordinance, is not strictly a police function, the Board assumes supervision of the License Division.

By observation of the Charter we find the Departmental accountant is responsible only to the Police Commission. It is his duty to keep all of the books and financial statements of the Department according to the forms prescribed by the City Controller. He must be able at all times to inform the Commission as to what funds are available for expenditures, and for what purposes they may lawfully be expended. The accountant forwards all requisitions to the Purchasing Agent and submits the bills to the Controllers' Office.

The Secretary to the Police Commission is the Office Manager of the Commission, paying particular attention to its non-law-enforcement duties. The Secretary has no authority to issue instructions of his own volition, but transmits all orders of the Commission and attends to all pertinent correspondence.

The Chief of Police is designated by the Charter as the General Manager of the Police Department. It is his duty to direct the activities of the Department in a manner that will secure the most efficient results, subject, however, to the policies laid down by the Commission.

The function of the Assistant Chief is to serve as Chief of Police in the absence or incapacity of the Chief. He meets the members of the Department and the public who seek audience with the Chief on matters not involving Departmental policy or other matters for which definite functional provision has not been made.

The Department has two Deputy Chiefs, one the director of Personnel, the other commanding the Traffic Division. A chief of Detectives, in charge of the Detective Division, as well as a Chief Jailer in charge of the Jail Division, constitute the higher ranking officers.

The Department itself is divided into functional and patrol divisions. The two major functional divisions are the Detective Division and the Traffic Division. The other functional divisions are the Crime Prevention, Jails, Property, Records, and Transportation. The Detective Division is held responsible for the arrest and prosecution of criminals and the solution of crime. The Traffic Division, headed by a Deputy Chief, is responsible for the traffic problem of the Police Department.

The patrol divisions are geographical areas established through the necessity of having police service available under the control of men who may learn the particular problems that are obtained in their respective areas. In general, it may be said that the Division Commander is as responsible for the policing of his area as is the Chief of Police for the policing of the city. He must maintain amicable relations with the citizens of his locality. He must take all measures possible with the personnel assigned him to prevent the occurrence of crime, and when the crime has occurred he is charged with a large part of the responsibility for the incarceration of the perpetrator. Although, the Detective unit of patrol divisions investigates and solves the crimes of that particular area, it reports to the Chief of Detectives at headquarters for instructions and is directly responsible to him for results obtained.

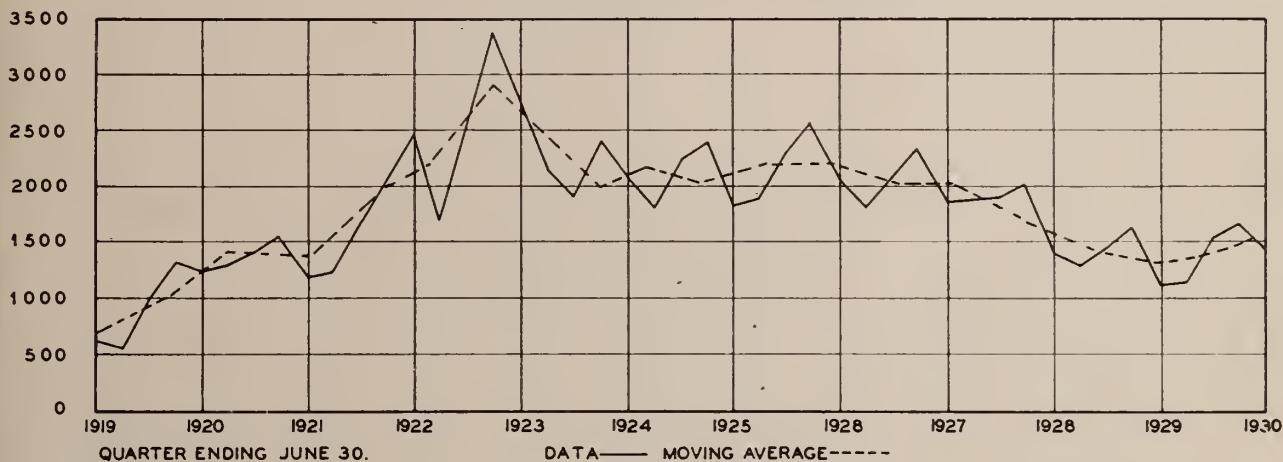

This, in brief, is the organization of the Police Department. Many efforts have been made to liken the Police Department to a military organization and to operate it as such. These have failed and will continue to fail for the reason that in a military form of organization all of the planning, all of the thought, comes from ranking and commissioned officers and a private has practically no opportunity to exercise individual initiative. In a Police Department this theory absolutely fails because, while the police problem in general may be met by preconceived lines of attack, each particular occurrence or case throws the policeman—the private—upon his own resources. The situation must be handled properly and instantly. By the time a superior officer arrives on the scene the matter is usually history.

Therefore, the form of a police organization, in the last analysis, indicates authority and details responsibility so that the co-ordinated efforts of its members, each exercising to a certain degree his own initiative, will result in efficient and effective law enforcement at the lowest possible cost to the taxpayer.

With the stabilization and advancement of the Record and Statistical Systems in the Los Angeles Police Department ensues a slightly higher crime rate for the year 1929-1930. Complete reports previously were taken only when the crime was made known to the police. In the past fiscal year reports on previous crimes discovered by the investigating officers have been made. This one phase of accurate record keeping has increased the number of crimes 7%.

BURGLARY—Burglary is charged whenever victims report someone has entered a building, railway car, etc., (except where the suspected person has a right to enter), and has taken something of value. Attempt burglary is charged where entry was unsuccessful or where nothing of value was taken.

ROBBERY—Robbery is charged whenever any article has been taken from the person or from the presence of the person by fear or violence, except where the violence was to the article and not to the person. (Purse snatching).

GRAND THEFT—Grand Theft is charged on the taking of any article valued at $200 or over, without the knowledge of the owner, but without burlarous entry. Certain livestock, without regard to value, is also included in the requirements for Grand Theft.

PETTY THEFT—Petty Theft includes the taking of articles (except specified livestock) having a value of less than $200.

THEFT FROM THE PERSON—Theft from the Person is charged when any article is taken from the clothing or person, without the knowledge of the person; or with his knowledge if taken by surprise and not by violence to the person. (Purse snatching.)

AUTO THEFT—Auto Theft is charged whenever any motor vehicle is taken unlawfully except in a Burglary or Robbery. In those cases the value of the car is considered in the value of property taken. No time lapse is considered.

AUTO RECOVERY—Auto Recovery is credited whenever the identifiable portions of the car (or the car intact) have been returned to the owner or his agent, regardless of the agency through which recovery has been made.

DETECTIVE DIVISION

The Detective Division of the Police Department, under command of the Chief of Detectives, comprises nine separate and distinct Details, with offices at Central Headquarters, and Divisional Detective Bureaus, located in each of the fourteen outlying sub-stations, each commanded by a Detective Captain.

Other units of the Detective Division are the Business Office at Central Station, under command of a Captain whose function is to interview citizens on miscellaneous matters, and who is responsible for the receipt and distribution of departmental telegrams, and the prompt broadcasting by teletype of all pertinent information to outlying stations and the Sheriff's Office, and also directs the Flying Squadron, on duty 24 hours a day, in three shifts, to respond to fast calls of every nature throughout the city. An Inspector, with headquarters in Central Detective Bureau, is responsible for all correspondence pertaining to matters involving detective investigation. He also must approve of releases of felony arrests made by the department and approves the reduction of a felony to a misdemeanor when the evidence warrants it. This is a method that has proved most successful, as it keeps headquarters in touch with the entire situation at all times. It is undoubtedly a protection to both individual officers and the department as a whole. Writs of habeas corpus and all legal papers served on the Police Department are handled in this office.

The nine special details of the Central Detective Bureau are the Auto Detail, specializing on thefts of cars, arrest and prosecution of automobile thieves; the Bunco Detail, handling pickpockets, shoplifting and embezzlement cases, purse snatching, and all of the diversified crimes that come under the head of obtaining money under false pretenses, or by trick-and-device; the Burglary-Theft Detail, investigating burglaries, with a special sub-detail dedicated to safe burglaries, bombs and all forms of explosives, and all thefts, except such as fall within the jurisdiction of the Auto or Bunco Details; the Forgery, Fugitive, Pawnshop and Narcotic Details; the Robbery Detail, the work of which includes investigations of hold-ups and felonious violations of the gun laws, and the Homicide Detail, investigating all deaths by violence—murder, suicide, or accident—and attempted crimes against life.

In addition, there is the Bureau of Adult Missing Persons, and two officers especially detailed to work in conjunction with the Postal and other Federal authorities in all cases in which the functions of the two departments interlock.

One of the two outstanding reasons for the present successful functioning of the Detective Bureau is specialization.

The personnel of the various Details before mentioned is made up of veteran detective lieutenants with long experience in the distinct class of crime handled by his squad, and "student detectives", men, who, while serving in the uniformed ranks, have shown unusual aptitude and fitness for plainclothes work, and who acquire their detective training in teamwork with seasoned investigators of long experience.

In the course of time, the plainclothes recruit becomes familiar with the names, faces and modus operandi of known criminals in his special line, and in his daily work new knowledge is added to his store, until he becomes an expert in one distinct class of criminal investigation.

The Detective units in the divisional bureaus must of necessity generalize in their work. In the investigation of major crimes of outstanding importance, committed in outlying divisions, officers from a Central Detail, specializing in the type of crime involved, are assigned to co-operate with the divisional detectives, with gratifying results.

The second factor is close and harmonious co-operation between the detective units and the Identification Bureau, with its various branches, and the Bureau of Statistics.

Indispensable to the successful investigation of crimes, the detection and arrest of criminals and their ultimate conviction in court is the vast amount of data kept available for instant reference at all hours of the day or night, in the files of the Record Division, including fingerprints procured and classified by expert operatives. In addition, there is a Research Bureau, with specialists in handwriting, chemistry, photography, and ballistics, equipped to work in conjunction with investigating officers on all cases, and to give in court convincing testimony on their findings.

Also of invaluable aid to investigating detectives is the service rendered by the Bureau of Statistics, in its daily classification and segregation of major crimes as reported throughout the city, and the use of modus operandi system.

The willingness and ability to adapt new scientific methods to detective work has been a decided asset to this division and no doubt plays an important part in the solution of a greater number of our crimes.

EDUCATIONAL ACTIVITY

The Police Evening High School was organized to further the educational qualifications of the personnel of the Los Angeles Police Department and afford them an opportunity for such special vocational training in police service as they may elect in the future. The school functions under the State of California plan of evening high schools for adult education, whereby free instruction is offered adults in related vocational subjects, within certain provisions.

The particular form of instruction best suited to police needs is a varying question. However, in this school, it was pre-supposed that the history, theory, functioning and future progress needs of civil government should be the major subject. A policeman should know more about civil government than the average person.

Since the subject of civil government is worthless to the policeman unless he can adequately and satisfactorily apply it, the subject of English became next of importance.

Physical education was included in the curriculum as a means of securing for the policeman that physical prowess necessary to successfully overcome physical resistance in cases where the proposition of civil government fails in its ordinary application.

Small arms work was not included because of the establishment of the thoroughly successful system of police pistol ranges within the department.

The faculty of the school is composed of regularly accredited secondary school instructors familiar with the problem of adult education and possessed with a zeal to secure a thorough knowledge of police practice and procedure to the end that they will better serve the undertaking.

It was understood at the outset that some time and experience would necessarily ensue before the teaching faculty of educators would be thoroughly familiar with the police needs of their subjects, and that there would be some difficulty in reconciling the viewpoint of the educator with that of the policeman. However, a start has been made. The proposition of modern civilization is largely dependent upon the educator and the policeman. The City of Los Angeles cannot help but benefit from the work of this school.

Weekly classes of two-hour duration in each subject were located at police stations convenient to the policeman attending them. The opening classes, beginning March 4th, 1930, were held at Central, Georgia Street, 77th Street, Hollywood, Venice, and San Pedro Stations. As the work progressed, additional classes were established at Hollenbeck Heights, West Los Angeles, and North Hollywood Stations.

Physical education classes were established at ten high school locations throughout the city. Track and gymnasium work, together with instruction in the art of weaponless defense were offered.

During the first month of the past four-month term, 985 policemen voluntarily attended the school. This record of attendance is gratifying when it is considered that the policemen attended on their own time and a comparatively small amount of publicity accompanied the program.

The completion of the first term has produced a feeling of permanency toward the plan.

The Police Department will be in a position to more thoroughly co-operate with the organization next term, and proposes a teaching faculty of police experts to assist in the class work. Class organization with relation to the educational qualification of the attending students will be in effect and stabilization of personnel during the school term will prevail to a very marked degree.

In addition to the high school organization, it is proposed that college and junior college classes be organized, together with such special classes in courses as will tend to develop needed corps of experts in particular lines of police endeavor.

A particularly interesting feature of the school plan is that of its comparative small financial outlay and expense. The school department is composed of educational experts, and is, therefore, able to educate more cheaply than any other agency. Further, the use of police stations reduces the cost of operation of the school. As an added feature, it has been aptly demonstrated during the past term, that the students are readily available during class time in the event of police emergency.

Of further interest is the morale feature of the school plan. The mutual interest, discussions and association contacts developed in the classes, together with the kindly and helpful spirit with which the classes are conducted, should go far to increase the morale of the police personnel of this city. In anticipation of this, band and orchestra instruction classes have been seriously considered as an added feature of the school.

Optimism and industry characterizes the entire school work and much may be hoped from it in the future.

TRAFFIC DIVISION

Outstanding, perhaps, in the administration of the Police Department during the last fiscal year was the work accomplished by the Traffic Division.

Faced with a problem which, during the last half dozen years has developed into a national enigma resulting from the tremendous increase in population and subsequent congestion of traffic in metropolitan areas, executives of this division, with foresight and energy, stepped beyond the bounds of their routine work and put into operation a program of educational and enforcement measures which not only has already accomplished much, but promises to come near to a solution of the local traffic situation, before the calendar year is ended.

Never before have the police of any large city in this country or elsewhere been confronted with a more puzzling condition. Coincident with the increase in population and the general advance of prosperity among all classes of people, startling strides have been made in transportation facilities. Upon transportation the American people depend for their livelihood. Large cities have become the central market for the agricultural producers in the country because of swift transportation. Rural communities have become, overnight, suburbs within a few minutes' time from the center of metropolitan areas. Office workers are not forced to live any more within walking distance of their places of employment. As a result these suburban communities have developed on all sides into vast areas of streets and homes.

With the general development has come the construction of new streets, boulevards and highways, and, in stride with the speeding up movement, the development of swifter automotive transportation. Speed in this day and age has proven to be the forerunner of success. To obtain more and more speed, experts have developed the high speed motor, the four wheel brakes. Streets have been widened and smoothed. Figures obtainable from any large business organization show a remarkable trend toward automobile vehicles as the swiftest and most adequate form of transportation. Overnight our streets and highways became filled with great fleets of freight and express. Bus lines merged and put into operation vast numbers of swift busses. Even the street car companies are using great numbers of these busses on their routes. The number of passenger cars increased proportionately.

All of this has been pointed to as a prosperous product of the times. Members of the Police Department as well as all other civic organizations have, perhaps, benefited as a result.

But to the members of the traffic division, who shoulder the responsibility of enforcing the existing traffic laws, the condition has brought about a situation, the solution of which has called for more than the routine duty of policing parking zones, congested street corners, and enforcement of the old-time speed limit laws.

For, as a consequence to the sudden increase in the general traffic congestion, the loss of life and destruction of property has become appalling. Lists of persons killed or injured from cities all over the country are such that the toll of bandits, murderers and perpetrators of violent crime pale into insignificance.

Therefore, with such a situation on their hands the traffic division experts realized more than ever during the last fiscal year, that a general enforcement of the various traffic laws was insufficient in solving the problem. They realized that existing safety measures must be enforced rigidly and that new ones must be put into force. Spasmodic speed drives, such as once were used as a deterrent to reckless driving, were found to be futile efforts.

They realized that not only would enforcement of such safety measures be adequate, but that, to attempt to get anywhere near a solution of the question, they would have to gain the cooperation of the public, the motorist, the pedestrian and the school child.

It was in their attempt to gain this cooperation that the work of the traffic division stands out as one of the achievements of the executives of that department.

To begin with, the traffic department executives realized they could accomplish little by themselves. They were not strategically in a position to reach the majority. Therefore a program was mapped out in which every representative organization in the city was asked to cooperate.

Two general meetings were held at which the following organizations were represented: Automobile Club of Southern California, Traffic Commission, members of the City Council, members of the Police Commission, District Attorney's office, City Prosecutor's office, the Judiciary, Federation of Women's Clubs, street railway companies, and many other like organizations interested in municipal affairs.

Every phase of the traffic problem was considered at these meetings. From the executives of the traffic division, judges, councilmen, and commissioners gained a practical knowledge of the actual conditions existing in the streets.

Exclusive of the general meetings, executives of the traffic division addressed more than forty different representative organizations outlining the traffic problems and suggestions for their solution. Within the department talks were given to every uniformed watch, exhorting each member to do all in his power to enforce the safety measures, rigidly, but at the same time to realize the necessity of courteous treatment toward the public.

Through such measures it was hoped to make the public realize the necessity of their recognition of the traffic law enforcement and their cooperation in obeying those laws.

A few figures portray to some extent the proportions of the traffic problem here. Motor vehicle registrations for 1929 in the city totaled 536,135, in the county, 824,824, and in the state, 2,029,879. This reveals that 26% of the California registration is in the City of Los Angeles alone.

And while New York, with a registration of 670,789 vehicles employs 2657 men on traffic, the Los Angeles Police Department is able, due to the small quota of personnel, to detail only 220 to this all-important phase of present day police work.

As an indication of the work of enforcing the safety measures accomplished, 35,120 citations were issued for violation of signals, and 27,261 for failure to make boulevard stops.

RECORD DIVISION

One of the most important functions of a police department should be its record system. The Record Division of the Los Angeles Police Department is rated by many as being one of the finest in the country in its efficient method of operation. This Division was established in the year of 1906 (then known as the Identification Bureau) with one employee, and has since grown until now approximately one hundred policemen and clerks are required to take care of the extremely large number of reports, letters, telegrams, fingerprints, circulars, etc., received daily, which must be properly recorded for specialists to go to the scenes of various crimes throughout the city and assist detectives in the preserving of important evidence, and the presentation of the same in court at the time of trial.

The nucleus of this Division is located at the central police station, with units in all sub-stations of the Department.

The Central Record Division is divided into four major units, namely: Records Proper, Identification, Warrants and Statistics. The Record unit is subdivided into the Criminal and Complaint Sections. Under the Identification unit are the Research, Photographic, Fingerprint, Handwriting, and Surveying sections.

Probably the most intricate in operation is the Record unit, where between four and five hundred complaints and arrest reports are received, coded, indexed, classified and filed each day, ranging from the most serious offenses to the least significant incident, covering all the happenings in the daily life of the city that are of importance or of interest to the Police Department in its attempt to suppress crime, apprehend and punish the malefactor.

COMPLAINTS

December 1, 1929, saw the inauguration of the most important change in this Division since its inception. The old "M.O." (Modus Operandi) system of numbering reports was discarded and the new "D. R." (Division of Records) centralized numbering system was placed in operation. Prior to this time each sub-station had its own numbering system, and as investigations proceeded over a long period of time and often into other sections of the city by many different investigators, the case would grow into a complexity of reports bearing many "M. O." numbers without a chance of being linked together other than by a good memory. The new system requires all members of the department wishing to make a report of a complaint or an arrest, to contact the Record Division receiving clerk for an assignment of a "D. R." number. The receiving clerk assigns numbers for all reports and in addition receives, segregates and dispatches all reports, including fingerprints. All follow-up reports in reference to a case are given the same "D. R." number and, consequently, all reports pertaining to the complaint investigation and disposition of same, will be filed together under the same number.

The original of all reports must be sent to the Record Division for permanent filing, sufficient carbon copies are made and forwarded to all interested departments.

All complaint reports, vice reports, traffic accidents, medical treatments, fire reports, after being checked in at the Receiving Desk, are forwarded to the Statistical section for recording and coding (coded for rapid segregation and counting by machine), after which they are returned to the indexing typist, who records on a 3"x5" index card the name of the victim, as a heading, on one card for alphabetical filing; the address as a heading on another card for filing in the geographical files; another card bears the name of the suspect, if one is given, and still other cards are made showing identification numbers, for filing in the numerical file.

Stolen or lost property not bearing numbers by which it may be identified is described in detail on index cards, which are filed in an elaborate filing cabinet behind guide headings such as: fur coats, diamond rings, auto accessories, tools.

The geographical index files facilitate a rapid check on the number of crime complaints or vice reports at a given address, or the number of traffic accidents occurring at a certain intersection.

Follow-up reports are made by investigators within seven days after being assigned to a case, and contain descriptions of any loot recovered, the name of any suspects arrested, and upon receipts of same, they are routed by the receiving clerk to the Stolen Property clerk for cancellations and corrections, thence to the Statistical section for recording, coding, correcting, and, last, to the file clerks, who attach them to the original and initial reports.

Other reports follow the same routine, except in instances where it is unnecessary for them to be routed to the Stolen Property files: i. e., Crimes against the person or public decency and good morals.

Reports of suicides, natural deaths, murders, are coded by the Statistician, indexed alphabetically and geographically in the same manner as other reports, but, due to the fact that investigations of this nature oftentimes cover a long period of time and on some occasions are referred to after many months or years, a special "HOMICIDE FILE" has been provided, which is separate and apart from the regular complaint file.

The California State Law requires all second-hand dealers, pawnbrokers, etc., to make a report to the Chief of Police daily on regulation forms, indicating thereon descriptions and serial numbers of all property purchased or pledged at their respective places of business, together with the name and description of the person dealt with. All such property is first checked against the stolen property files, and in the event that no report is found of the articles being stolen or lost, index cards are typed showing the serial numbers of each article, or in their absence, an accurate description is shown. The cards are then filed for future reference.

All dealers who sell pistols or revolvers to individuals are required to make a report to the Chief of Police each day, giving the make of weapon, calibre, number of same, together with the name and address of the purchaser, and upon the receipt of same, the necessary index cards are typed and placed in a permanent file.

A complete record is maintained of all automobiles reported stolen, recovered or impounded within the city, as well as reports of cars stolen in almost every state in the United States. The personnel assigned to this work compiles each day, lists of autos reported stolen, recovered, or impounded, to be printed in the Los Angeles Police Bulletin; also at midnight, a stolen auto list is compiled, "Hot Sheet," indicating the make and license numbers of all cars reported stolen within the past seven days and still outstanding. The list is delivered to the police printing bureau, where approximately twenty-one hundred stolen car cards are printed and delivered to all officers of the Los Angeles Police Department, as well as to several police departments nearby. The Auto Records must be contacted in each instance where a theft, impoundment or recovery report is to be made.

CRIMINAL

During the latter part of 1929 a Criminal Correspondence file was inaugurated where all correspondence received by the Los Angeles Police Department from other jurisdictions relative to criminal matters and missing persons is indexed and filed, copies of the same being made and forwarded to interested officers for their investigation and reply. In the event that a subject mentioned in such correspondence has no local record, the letter is given a "C" (Correspondence) number; however, if by searching the files it is found that the subject has been arrested in this city, the communication is placed in the file of the individual.

A circular file is also maintained, where all bulletins and circulars received from other jurisdictions are properly recorded, the index cards being filed in the regular index files, the bulletins and circulars are filed in a geographical file under the name of the city or town from which the information was received.

All reports of arrests and dispositions made by officers of this department as well as disposition reports received from the local courts, are forwarded to the criminal section, where the necessary index cards are made from the arrest reports, and dispositions added thereto. Also each year thousands of reports are received from identification bureaus and police departments throughout the country showing records of additional arrests of subjects who have previously been arrested by officers of the Los Angeles Police Department, and in this manner the activities of criminals having local records are kept up-to-date. Such identifications are made in other jurisdictions by the comparing of the fingerprints of subjects arrested with those which have been forwarded from the department.

FINGERPRINTS

During the past fiscal year, approximately 69,000 fingerprints of different individuals were received in this department. After classifying the said prints and searching the fingerprint files, it was found that approximately 44,000 had previous records. On June 30, 1930, 223,674 fingerprints were on file in this department. The Henry system of classifying and filing of fingerprints is used by this Division, and inasmuch as practically every police department and identification bureau throughout the United States, as well as several foreign countries, use the same system, it is possible to wire or cable the classification of an individual to another jurisdiction. While a positive identification cannot be made in this manner, it will, in many instances, clear a subject from suspicion; for example, should the primary classification of an individual who is wanted by this department, be 32 over 32, and the primary classification of the subject in custody be 1 over 1, it could readily be determined that the fingerprints were different.

In addition to the Henry fingerprint system, a single fingerprint file is maintained, where copies of fingerprints photographed at the scenes of crime are classified and filed, to be later compared with the fingerprints of subjects who are arrested by officers of this department.

During the period from July 1, 1929, to June 30, 1930, fingerprints photographed during the investigation of crimes resulted in the identification of the perpetrators in two hundred and twenty cases.

The types of crimes where fingerprints were identified are distributed as follows:

Aid Jail Escape	1	Purse Snatching	4
Auto Theft	14	Robbery	23
Bunco	1	Operating of Still	14
Burglary	132	Suicide	2
Dynamiting	1	Theft from Auto	1
Hit and Run	2	Wright Act Possession	19
Murder	6
		Total	220

The distribution of cases where no suspect was named and the identification being established solely through checking on and connecting up the fingerprints, is as follows:

Auto Theft	3	Robbery	2
Burglary	92	Theft from Auto	1
		Total	98

Ninety-nine felony cases were cleared up entirely upon the identification of fingerprints. In 121 cases, a suspect was named, yet in many instances the fingerprints furnished the only evidence upon which a conviction could be secured.

The identification of fingerprints photographed at the scenes of crimes has resulted in the clearing up of many cases not enumerated, as in the case of Wyne Stanley, whose fingerprints, obtained from several different burglary jobs, were assembled, searched and identified in the files. Several days after this identification was established, Stanley was arrested and confronted with his fingerprints photographed on 18 burglaries. The identification of these fingerprints, together with the modus operandi, and Stanley's confession, cleared up over 120 burglaries.

HAND WRITING

On file in this section are many thousands of specimens of hand-writings of the various subjects who have been arrested by officers of this department during the past several years. During the past year, nearly 3000 specimens of hand-writings were examined and a large number of suspects were identified as having forged checks, altered documents, etc. The Handwriting Expert is called into court to testify practically every day in the year that court convenes.

PHOTOGRAPH

Approximately 7000 prisoners were photographed during the past fiscal year ending June 30th, and from those negatives 37,279 prints were made. The photographer was called upon to go to the scenes of 266 crimes and accidents for the purpose of making photographs of street intersections, damaged automobiles, etc.

Approximately 4000 negatives of fingerprints which were photographed at the scenes of crimes were developed and from those negatives 6262 prints were made. 338 photostatic copies of checks and documents were made, and 6340 photostatic copies of fingerprints were made and forwarded to other jurisdictions.

RESEARCH

During the past fiscal year, the Research Section has made splendid strides in the application of science to the apprehension and conviction of the criminal. Recently a Forensic Chemist and a Ballistic Expert were assigned to this section. The Ballistician conducted 85 investigations in relation to firearms, which were used by criminals and gave expert testimony in court in a large number of cases.

The chemists conducted approximately 500 analysis investigations and examinations for as many cases, and also furnished expert testimony in court whenever their services were needed.

The Research Section functions as a scientific unit and is required, from time to time, to develop tests and perfect methods and procedures of a scientific character for their applicability to police work.

The Ballistician also is a radio technician, and has been assigned to the task of testing and developing automotive radio units for installation in Police automobiles, as well as recommending a suitable transmitter.

A research has been conducted with all American-made writing fluids, with a view of identifying the makes used in writing various documents.

The Research Section is, as yet, unfinished and its practicalities must be demonstrated in the future. The personnel of this section has also been assigned to the work of pioneering in the case of the Vis-a-Film, which is a portable rogue's gallery and is used for rapid identification of criminals. The Vis-a-Film is often taken to the scenes of crimes and the photographs of thousands of subjects who have previously been convicted of crimes are shown to the residents of this city, who have been the victims of gun-men or other dangerous criminals. Photos of subjects who are wanted for the commission of various crimes are shown to both the detective and uniformed ranks when they assemble for roll call at Central Station.

In the near future this work will be enlarged and "regular show-ups" of photos of wanted criminals will be conducted at the various sub-stations of this department.

A dictaphone has been perfected and installed at a number of locations for the use of the detectives.

The research work is growing rapidly and many investigators from the Central Detective Bureau, as well as from all sub-stations, are constantly calling at the Research Section and requesting assistance of the personnel assigned to this work.

SURVEYING

The Police Surveyor was called to the scenes of approximately 100 crimes during the past year for the purpose of making maps and drawings of street intersections, buildings and the like, and also was subpoenaed into court to give expert testimony at the trials of 55 different criminals.

STATISTICS

The real value of statistics lies in their continuity over an extensive period of time. The flexibility of the system used by the Statistical Bureau of the Los Angeles Police Department enables it to keep comparable data from year to year and also to progress in the pioneer field of police statistics.

The combination of statistical information with the Modus Operandi (Method of Operation) System is facilitated by the use of tabulating machinery. This affords a pliancy which allows both factors of the bureau to expand without retarding the other.

Established in 1923, the Statistical Bureau has increased the volume and the detail of material each year until every type of complaint and arrest is tabulated.

Detailed analyzations are made for the executives of the department to insure correct and effective distribution of personnel, also to aid in the control of crime and other police problems.

The results of departmental effort and investigation on reported crimes are recorded statistically, thus completing the picture and keeping department heads in constant touch with the situation.

The demand for accurate police statistics is becoming more urgent and the need of an established, progressive statistical unit compiling useful and comprehensive data is recognized by all police departments.

WARRANTS

The personnel assigned to this work is called upon to serve all misdemeanor warrants issued by the courts for individuals who live, or who may be found within the city limits of Los Angeles. During the past year approximately 19,000 warrants and 49,000 subpoenas were served.

CRIME PREVENTION DIVISION

The Crime Prevention Division, in addition to the usual divisional administrative officers, is composed of the Juvenile Bureau, consisting of both Boys' and Girls' Departments; City Mother's Bureau, Missing Juvenile Bureau, Felony Department, Women's Probation Bureau, and the Men's Probation Bureau.

The main purpose of all officers assigned to the Crime Prevention Division is to enforce the laws and ordinances that have been enacted for the protection and welfare of boys and girls, and to promote harmony and the elements of honorable citizenship in the home and community. Every effort is made to secure the good will and co-operation of the parents as well as the child.

The reports investigated by these bureaus are received from all officers of the Police Department, parents and other citizens of Los Angeles, and cover all offenses indicated by the fourteen sub-divisions of Section 1 of the Juvenile Court Laws of the State of California. Each case is given individual attention and the complaints received range from dependency, incorrigibility, neighborhood rows, domestic discord, truancy, to the extreme of sex and criminal delinquency cases.

If the offense is of a minor nature and the first one, the child and parents are called into the Bureau, and if the parents are co-operative, the child is given a lecture and released to the parents on "voluntary" probation to this division. The child is then required to report to the Juvenile Bureau as often and as long a period as the investigating officer considers necessary to correct the delinquent tendency. If the child is again arrested on any offense, a petition is filed in Juvenile Court. In many cases the child is released to the parents, with the County Probation Officer assisting them in the proper supervision. To efficiently handle the cases where the juvenile is placed on "voluntary" probation, it would require a considerably larger personnel than the present one. All of these cases should be followed up from time to time, and due to a handicap of both transportation and personnel, this program cannot be successfully carried on.

MISSING JUVENILE BUREAU

The Missing Juvenile Bureau, consisting of two policemen and a policewoman, receives and investigates all reports of missing persons under the age of eighteen years. These reports are received from officers of the local police department, police departments of other cities, parents and citizens. In fact, this department is the recipient of requests for missing juveniles from the entire United States, which is no doubt due to the location of Los Angeles. The main purpose of the bureau is to restore missing and runaway children to their parents or guardians and to ascertain the contributing causes of truancy and to correct them in order to prevent repetitions. The officers of this bureau broadcast descriptions of missing and runaway children. Through our own department, as well as through police officials of other cities, thorough investigations are made to determine any delinquency on the part of children or whether any crime has been committed against the child by an adult.

FELONY DEPARTMENT

This department is composed of male detectives and two policewomen, supervised by a Captain of Detectives, and operating for the purpose of prosecuting adults who are involved with juveniles in any offenses such as statutory rape, contributing, degeneracy acts and kidnaping.

All officers assigned to this bureau work in civilian clothes, and have been carefully chosen for their special adaptability to this type of police duty. The policewomen investigate the home conditions, environment and associates of the girls involved and then present the case to the District Attorney with the view of securing a complaint against the adult offender. This unit not only procures the evidence, but also prosecutes the case in court.

WOMEN'S PROBATION DEPARTMENT

This department consists of probation officers and policewomen supervised by a woman Chief Probation Officer, and deals with adult women accused of a crime not amounting to a felony. They make preliminary investigations of the antecedents, character and circumstances of the accused when so directed by the court, and also supervise those women who are placed on probation and endeavor to determine the underlying causes.

MEN'S PROBATION DEPARTMENT

This department consists of policemen supervised by a male Chief Probation Officer and deals with adult male offenders brought before the Municipal Court. Their work covers all classes of misdemeanors. The officers aid the judges of the Municipal Court in making pre-court investigations and supervise men who are placed on probation and parole. This department also assists the City Parole Commission in making thorough investigations in order that the Commission may arrive at just and humane decisions in numerous and various cases that come before them for disposition.

The ultimate purpose of the Probation Departments is to lend a spirit of friendliness and encouragement to men and women coming under their supervision whose previous record justifies tolerance.

There is also a limited number of policemen and policewomen detailed from the Crime Prevention Division to patrol the streets, parks, dance halls, theatres, and other places where juveniles congregate, especially during the late hours, with the view of preventing crime and delinquency, and to take necessary action should such occur. One policewoman and one policeman are assigned to each of the following sub-stations of the Police Department: San Pedro, Hollywood, 77th Street, Newton, Wilshire, Venice and Georgia Division. Although these officers are assigned to a division, they handle all juvenile problems in their respective districts under the general supervision of the captain commanding Crime Prevention Division.

Due to insufficient personnel, six sub-stations have neither juvenile officers nor policewomen to take care of those portions of the city. Crime Prevention work is nationally considered of vital importance in the control of future crime. In order to successfully combat the delinquent and pre-delinquent juvenile situation throughout the entire city, sufficient personnel and adequate equipment is of paramount importance.
